EAST SUSSEX SCHOOL RECOGNISED FOR DEDICATION TO PUPILS' COMMUNICATION AT SHINE A LIGHT AWARDS

Peacehaven Community School in East Sussex has been highly commended for the Secondary School / College of the Year Award at a glittering award ceremony in London, hosted by comedian, David Baddiel. The school has been highlighted for its commitment to supporting young people's speech, language and communication development, having last year been crowned as the winner of the same category.

The 2015 Shine a Light Awards are a national awards scheme organised by Pearson, in partnership with The Communication Trust, to celebrate innovative work, inspirational individuals and excellent practice in supporting children and young people's communication development.

Peacehaven Community School has been praised for prioritising communication and employing specialist staff including a speech, language and communication needs (SLCN) teacher. The school has processes in place to quickly identify if children have SLCN and to monitor their subsequent progress.

The school invests in staff training in areas such as using talk to develop writing skills and using Lego-based therapy for children with autism and related conditions. Parents are given the opportunity to observe teaching sessions and use similar strategies in the home.

Formal assessments show that pupils with SLCN at the school are making significant progress, while parents have said their children have achieved much more as a result of the specialist support. The young people have gained confidence, taking part in activities they would previously have found difficult.

For example, they worked together to organise a teacher vs pupil talent contest, which saw a pupil who had a history of selective mutism co-presenting the show and a pupil who had joined the school with no English reciting a Shakespearean sonnet.

Mandy Lewis, Assistant Head from Peacehaven Community School said: "We are delighted that our work has been recognised at the Shine a Light Awards once again! We feel proud to have been a part of an event which celebrates good practice in developing students' speech and language skills. We are lucky to work with a team of staff who are committed to developing their knowledge and skills to work with all students, including those with special educational needs and to have Clare O'Rourke, our specialist teacher to work directly with students and to support staff.

David Baddiel, Host of the 2015 Shine a Light Awards, said: “Because of the important work that the Shine a Light 2015 winners and highly commended finalists have achieved, children and young people’s language and communication development, especially for those with SLCN, has been supported.

“Speech and language problems too often go under the radar, so everyone should not only be congratulated for their work but for bringing this important issue to the attention of others. I would like to say well done to all those shortlisted who have shown true grit and determination to better themselves and others. They are all a true inspiration - keep up the good work.”

Chris Hall, Director of Clinical Assessment at Pearson, says: “Congratulations to Peacehaven Community School for being highly commended for the Secondary School/College of the Year Award at the 2015 Shine a Light Awards for their remarkable achievements. Each year the applications get stronger and more inspiring. We have seen examples of children and young people being supported by some truly inspiring individuals and schools like Peacehaven Community School.

“The Shine a Light Awards, now in their fourth year, continue to grow and we have been delighted to welcome an incredible judging panel who represent the very best of the education and special educational needs (SEN) sector. To once again partner with the Communication Trust and celebrate these inspiring people and organisations is a real privilege.”

Anne Fox, Director of The Communication Trust, says: “Congratulations to the winners and highly commended finalists whose work will help inspire and motivate people right across the country. Peacehaven Community School is a wonderful example of this inspiration in practice and they have shown what can be achieved with commitment and dedication.

“We’re delighted to have this partnership with Pearson, which allows Shine a Light to be a true celebration of the amazing work up and down the country and for helping the Trust to reach more children and young people and the professionals who work with them.

“The Shine a Light Awards are a key fixture for the speech and language sector as they reflect a range of best practice and innovative work taking place across the country. At a time when early years, health, education and SEN services are going through significant reforms, Shine a Light focuses attention on what can be achieved through expertise, sheer determination and never giving up on children and young people’s potential.”

The Shine a Light awards are designed to honour individuals, teams, campaigns, communication-friendly settings and communities that have excelled in their support of children and young people’s communication, particularly for those with SLCN.
