GREGOR GILMOUR FROM BURY HONOURED AT SHINE A LIGHT AWARDS FOR HIS COMMITMENT TO DEVELOPING CHILDREN'S COMMUNICATION

Gregor Gilmour from Bury has been awarded the Young Person of the Year Award at an awards ceremony in London, for his sheer determination at improving his own life chances as well as others across the region. The 2017 Shine a Light Awards, run by Pearson in partnership with The Communication Trust, took place on 23rd March 2017 and were hosted by singer and theatre star Gareth Gates.

The Shine a Light Awards is a national awards scheme that celebrates innovative work and excellent practice in supporting children and young people's communication development.

Gregor, aged 23, has cerebral palsy and complex communication needs. He uses a voice output communication aid to communicate that is mounted to his wheelchair, which he accesses by touch screen with the help of a key-guard.

Gregor has used a variety of Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC) systems throughout his life and has had to learn and re-learn different communication software and hardware over the years. It hasn't been easy for Gregor but he has been determined to overcome all obstacles with a big smile on his face including living with a physical disability, navigating the education system and maintaining a social life.

Since leaving full time education Gregor has mentored other young people who have communication difficulties and at 1Voice, a small national charity that provides networking and support to children who use AAC and their families, he helps to organise national meetings and events.

He volunteers one day a week at Bridge College, Manchester, assisting in the sessions for communication aid users. He also works with Leeds University to help educate and enlighten student nurses about AAC and volunteers at Manchester Metropolitan University on various AAC research projects.

He also travels all over the North West to support young AAC users and even visits a mainstream school once a week to support an AAC user there, which he organised himself after meeting the teacher.

Gregor Gilmour said: "I am so happy to have won this award. It means a lot to me to be recognised for the work that I do. I would like to thank Angie McCormack from the charity 1Voice for nominating me and to say a big well done to all the other finalists."

Gareth Gates, host of the 2017 Shine a Light Awards, said: “Gregor is a true inspiration to me. Being able to communicate with confidence is often taken for granted but for many it is an everyday struggle. I have found my stutter crippling at times but I have learnt ways to manage my difficulties with the support of others.

“It is heart-warming to know that other children and young people across England are getting the support they need to develop and achieve goals that may not have been possible otherwise. Gregor should be extremely proud of his award, his own achievements and the work he does for others.”

Chris Hall, Director of Clinical Assessment at Pearson, said: “Congratulations to Gregor for his Young Person of the Year Award. His passion to help others has resulted in him confidently sharing his own life experiences, empowering children, their families and other young adults to have higher expectations of themselves and to live life to the full.

“This is the fifth year we have run the Awards and we remain blown away by the standard of applications. They give an amazing insight into the unsung work that is taking place across the country to improve the speech, language and communication skills of children and young people.”

Octavia Holland, Director of The Communication Trust, said: “Congratulations to Gregor and everyone who triumphed at the Shine a Light Awards. They have shown what can be achieved when expertise, enthusiasm and dedication is given to children and young people who struggle to communicate. These Awards highlight the very best practice that is taking place in settings across the country. We would like to say a huge thank you to Pearson for their long-standing support.”
