OUTSTANDING HIGHGATE SCHOOL HONOURED AT SHINE A LIGHT AWARDS FOR ITS COMMITMENT TO DEVELOPING CHILDREN’S COMMUNICATION

William Ellis School in Highgate, London, has been highly commended in the Secondary School of the Year category at an awards ceremony in London for its continued commitment to developing its pupils’ communication skills. The 2017 Shine a Light Awards, run by Pearson in partnership with The Communication Trust, took place on 23rd March 2017 and were hosted by singer and theatre star Gareth Gates.

The 2017 Shine a Light Awards is a national awards scheme that celebrates innovative work and excellent practice in supporting children and young people’s communication development.

In the past year, William Ellis School has created an oracy curriculum across the school and has taken a systematic approach to developing a combination of whole-school, specialist, and targeted interventions. With everything from performance poetry classes, to persuasive language lessons, to weekly debates, pupils of all ages and abilities have benefitted from the school’s dedication to communication. In 2015, the school successfully bid for a Listen-EAR project, which was run in the Maths department by Camden Speech and Language Therapy Service for Young People. This included working on students’ memory skills and a Numeracy Ninjas lunchtime club.

Since 2015 the school has employed a speech and language therapist for two days a week, providing bespoke staff training and supporting students with Education and Health Care Plans, as well as those with additional needs, including language disorders, autism and social, emotional and behavioural difficulties.

In addition to this, the schools Special Educational Needs Coordinator and members of the senior leadership team have carried out a programme of ‘structured conversation’ meetings with the parents of students with additional needs, noting down parental views. An action plan is then distributed to staff where appropriate.

Rachel DeHissen, SENDCo at William Ellis School said: “William Ellis recognises how important good communication skills is, in particular oracy. We are committed to developing these skills in every student.’

Gareth Gates, host of the 2016/17 Shine a Light Awards, said: “The dedication of William Ellis School is outstanding. Being able to communicate with confidence is often taken for granted but for many it is an everyday struggle. I have found my stutter crippling at times but I have learnt ways to manage my difficulties with the support of others.

“It is heart warming to know that other children and young people across England are getting the support they need to develop and achieve goals that may not have been possible otherwise. William Ellis School should be extremely proud of its award.”

Chris Hall, Director of Clinical Assessment at Pearson, said: “Congratulations to William Ellis School for its achievement. The oracy curriculum that has been rolled out across the school, the dedication to staff training and the communication channels that are in place with parents is proving very successful. It will be incredible to see what can be achieved in the next year!

“This is the fifth year we have run the Awards and we remain blown away by the standard of applications. They give an amazing insight into the unsung work that is taking place across the country to improve the speech, language and communication skills of children and young people.”

Octavia Holland, Director of The Communication Trust, said: “Congratulations to William Ellis School and everyone who triumphed at the Shine a Light Awards. They have shown what can be achieved when expertise, enthusiasm and dedication is given to children and young people who struggle to communicate. These Awards highlight the very best practice that is taking place in settings across the country. We would like to say a huge thank you to Pearson for their long-standing support.”

[Name of judge], [Organisation] and category judge, said: “Quote to be included”
