OUTSTANDING BRIDGEWATER PRIMARY SCHOOL HONOURED AT SHINE A LIGHT AWARDS FOR ITS COMMITMENT TO DEVELOPING CHILDREN’S COMMUNICATION

Bridgewater Primary School in Newcastle-upon-Tyne has been commended in the Primary School of the Year Award category at an awards ceremony in London for its continued commitment to developing its pupils’ communication skills. The 2018 Shine a Light Awards, run by learning company Pearson in partnership with The Communication Trust, took place on 22nd March 2018 and were hosted by stand-up comedian, actor and TV writer, Adam Hess.

The 2018 Shine a Light Awards is a national awards scheme that celebrates innovative work and excellent practice in supporting children and young people’s communication development. There were 10 awards in total, with winners and highly-commended finalists chosen by a panel of experts in the sector.

At Bridgewater Primary School, the collaborative team of school staff and an NHS specialist speech and language therapist (SALT) regularly discuss ways to support children who need speech and language therapy. Children receive therapy directly from the SALT or are supported by school staff working on tailored activities that boost communication skills.

The specialist SALT works in school two days a week and works closely with the special educational needs coordinator (SENCo) to address any complex language and communication needs the children may have. Being in the school so regularly means it is possible to carry out joint observations of children to assess education and language needs to provide a more holistic approach, as well as being on hand to support the staff working regularly with pupils with speech language and communication needs. Staff also receive tailored training to support improving language for every pupil in the school.

The impact of this support is school-wide: in the term directly preceding these awards, 93% of pupils were found to have made progress with their speech and language goals. The school carefully prioritises its funding to allow for autism outreach and access to a specialist teacher of English as an additional language (EAL).

Naomi Parker, Specialist Speech and Language Therapist at Newcastle NHS Foundation Trust, said: We are all thrilled to have been commended at the 2018 Shine a Light Awards. It is testament to the hard work, determination and collaborative team work to ensure that children’s speech, language and communication needs are supported. This ethos permeates through everything Bridgewater Primary School does and helps children thrive.”

Karen McIver, SEN Assistant at Bridgewater Primary School, said: "This commendation means so much to all the staff at Bridgewater Primary School. Being able to work alongside Naomi Parker as a Specialist Speech and Language Therapist every week brings much expertise to how we identify and support children with speech, language and communication needs (SLCN). Naomi provides support to staff and children working as a core part of our team."

Stand-up comedian and actor, Adam Hess, host of the 2018 Shine a Light Awards, said: "The dedication of Bridgewater Primary School is outstanding. As a child, I struggled greatly with dyslexia and an immense fear of public speaking, if it wasn't for the support I received when I was younger I wouldn't be in the position I am today.

"It is fantastic to know that other children and young people are being given the support they need to learn, thrive and achieve their goals. Bridgewater Primary School should be very proud of its success."

Sharon Hague, Senior Vice President, Schools, Pearson, said: "Our warmest congratulations to Bridgewater Primary School for their success. Through our innovative clinical assessments, Pearson is committed to supporting those working to help people overcome challenges in speech and language. For six years we have run these awards as we believe it is so important to recognise and celebrate the incredible, but often unsung, work being done across the country to change the lives of children and young people by helping them to develop their communications skills."

Octavia Holland, Director of The Communication Trust, said: "Congratulations to Bridgewater Primary School and everyone who triumphed at the 2018 Shine a Light Awards. They have shown what can be achieved when expertise, enthusiasm and dedication is given to children and young people who struggle to communicate. These awards highlight the very best practice that is taking place in settings across the country."

The Shine a Light Awards have grown in popularity since their launch during the National Year of Communication in 2011 (known as the Hello campaign). To date, the awards have celebrated the work of over 120 teams and a wide range of individuals, including young people with severe and complex speech, language and communication needs (SLCN).
